Replacing the Herbert C. Bonner Bridge NOW is critical. When built in 1963, the bridge had a life expectancy of 30 years. Replacing this vital link to Hatteras Island on the Outer Banks of North Carolina is now 17 years overdue. Work on a new bridge was planned to begin in 2010, but environmental issues have repeatedly delayed construction.

The North Carolina Department of Transportation (NCDOT) has prepared an Environmental Assessment with a new preferred alternative that recommends building a new parallel bridge, next to the existing structure, as quickly as possible.

This is a decisive point for the future of the Bonner Bridge. You can make a difference by making a public comment. For more information and to make a comment go to: www.replacethebridgenow.com
